DR DUANE Reade™ Flu Shot

I heard this year's flu strain is expected to be the same as last year's. Do I really need a flu shot?

Yes. According to the CDC, regardless of the expected strain, you should get vaccinated each and every year.*

Is it possible to get vaccinated too early in the season?

No, a flu shot will protect you all season long, even through peak flu periods like February and March.

What's the benefit of getting a flu shot early?

The earlier you get a flu shot, the sooner you're protected.**

Are Duane Reade pharmacists really experts when it comes to flu shots?

Absolutely! Each Duane Reade pharmacist goes through an extensive training program to be able to provide immunization services.

Will my doctor be notified if I get a flu shot at Duane Reade?

Yes. We're happy to send your doctor a copy of your immunization record. Just let us know.

Can I get my flu shot at Duane Reade the next time I pick up my prescription?

Yes. Duane Reade administers flu shots anytime the pharmacy is open, and walk-ins are always welcome.

For more information about the flu or the flu vaccine, visit duanereade.com/flu.

Protesters vow to keep up fight

► More than 700 anti-Wall Street demonstrators arrested Saturday as they marched on Brooklyn Bridge car lanes ► Those camped out in Zuccotti Park vow they'll stay all winter ► FDNY worried about fuel tanks

► Warnings were given to the protesters to stay on the pedestrian walkway of the Brooklyn Bridge, police said.

Anti-Wall Street protesters vowed to keep up their fight yesterday despite the arrests of hundreds of people Saturday for blocking traffic lanes on the Brooklyn Bridge in an unauthorized protest.

Police issued nearly 800 summonses on Saturday to members of the Occupy Wall Street movement who took part in the march on the Brooklyn-bound lanes, which snarled traffic until the bridge was reopened hours later. Most of the protesters who were arrested were issued summonses and released.

The Occupy Wall Street movement is protesting against home foreclosures, high unemployment and the 2008 bank bailouts.

Occupy protests are being planned for Boston and Philadelphia. In Los Angeles, more than 100 protesters camped out in front of City Hall.

The fire department said it has been to the camp in Zuccotti Park to check for fire safety issues. Members of the anti-Wall Street group have vowed to stay at the camp through the winter.

"Our concern is cooking, the use of propane tanks and garbage piling up," said Frank Dwyer, a spokesman for the FDNY. "All we're concerned about is that everybody is safe."

During Saturday's protest on the bridge, police used orange mesh nets to surround the marchers in what witnesses described as chaos, with protesters being handcuffed and taken off the bridge. REUTERS

Protesters: We were tricked!

NEW YORK. While police say they warned protesters not to walk onto the Brooklyn Bridge via the vehicle ramp, some protesters said they were lured onto the ramp by a police escort. Police freely allowed them to walk onto the bridge and then handcuffed them, some said. Videos surfaced over the weekend that show officers walking over the bridge in front of the protesters, but police said they warned the crowds to get off. METRO/EAE

Internet sex sting nets two

QUEENS. Two men have been arrested for allegedly attempting to have sex with underage girls in a sting set up by the NYPD. Joseph Sulker, 29, of Queens was sentenced to jail for sending sexual messages to a screen name he believed belonged to a 14-year-old girl. Upon attempting to meet her to have sex, he was arrested. Shane Makar, 37, of Woodbridge, N.J., was arraigned last night for allegedly trying to meet an undercover cop posing as a 14-year-old girl.

Cops: Fare jumper had gun, drugs

COBBLE HILL. A 16-year-old was arrested Saturday for jumping the turnstiles at the Bergen Street 2,3 subway station. Police Officer Renjith Menon was patrolling the station at about 6 p.m. on Saturday when he saw Tyrell Thomas and another teen jump the turnstile. As Thomas was being arrested, the police found a loaded gun and a bag of marijuana hidden in his clothes. His friend, the second teen, fled into a departing train. METRO/EAE

NYPD searches for sexual predators

► Both men attempted rape and got away ► One man lured a 12-year-old girl in Midtown, then attacked her

New York City police are on the hunt for two different sex predators, one who attempted to sexually assault a 25-year-old woman in Bushwick and another who tried to rape a 12-year-old girl in Midtown.

Police say a man lured the pre-teen girl into an empty office inside 28 West 44th Street last Tuesday at about 5 p.m. He then pulled out a pair of scissors and attempted to rape the little girl.

She was able to escape and tell authorities about the incident, police report.

Police told Metro that the girl told them she had met the man earlier in the day, when he "promised to get her a job in an office with computers."

The man is described as being Caucasian, about 5'9", between 50 and 60 years old, bald and 180-200 pounds.

Another incident in Brooklyn has police searching for a 20- to 30-year-old Hispanic man with a mole on his face.

Police say the suspect attacked a 25-year-old woman while she was walking near Bushwick and Johnson avenues in Bushwick on Sept. 25 at 1:30 a.m. He threw her to the ground and attempted to rape her, said cops.

He also allegedly punched the victim in the head several times, before her screaming drew a crowd that chased the suspect away.

Anyone with information is asked to call Crime Stoppers at (800) 577-8477.

SlutWalk marches on Union Square

► Organizers rally to support sex-assault victims ► March first held in Toronto earlier this year after comment from police officer ► Participants say sexual assault is never the woman's fault, no matter how she dresses

It shouldn't matter what victims of rape or sexual assault were wearing. That was the message Saturday at the first-ever SlutWalkNYC, where over 1,000 people marched on Union Square, making it loud and clear that no one — no matter how short their skirt, or how tight their dress — deserves to be attacked.

The SlutWalk march started in April of this year in Toronto, after a police officer there reportedly said, "Women should avoid dressing like sluts in order not to be victimized."

Organizers say they are fighting to end the victim-blaming that so often accompanies sexual assault crimes.

"We figured it was time to do it here, because we can really be a game-changer," said organizer Melissa Marturano, 23, of bringing the march to New York.

One woman from Brooklyn, who gave her name as Kaitlin Dale, said she attended Saturday's march because she wanted to support fellow rape survivors. Dale, 24, was attacked in 2009 in New York City after finishing a shift as a waitress. A man drugged her drink and followed her home. He then raped her in her apartment, she said. Dale wants victims to know it is never their fault. "We have the right ... not be blamed for it," she said.

PROVEN TREATMENT TO RELIEVE BACK OR KNEE PAIN

TREATMENT COVERED BY MOST MAJOR HEALTH INSURANCE PLANS – INCLUDING MEDICARE.

Do you suffer from back or knee pain?

Did you know that over 100 million Americans suffer from knee and joint pain? In fact, this pain accounts for 25% of all visits to primary care physicians and half of all anti-inflammatory drug prescriptions.

Have you ever wondered how different your life would be if you could get rid of your knee pain? Where would you go, what would you do? What would you give for a day or a week or a lifetime of pain free mobility? I'm pleased to announce that knee pain sufferers don't have to wait any longer to get the most advanced non-surgical FDA cleared treatment.

If you suffer from any degree of knee pain I invite you to regain control of your life by visiting NY Rehab, a state of the art medical facility.

What causes osteoarthritis?

The cause of osteoarthritis is unknown. Factors that might cause it include the following:

- Being overweight
- Getting Older (wear and tear)
- Joint Injury
- Joints that are not properly formed (alignment/imbalance problems)
- A genetic defect in the joint cartilage
- Stresses on the joints from certain activities including sports, work and leisure activities

What else is available to treat knee pain?

After careful study and several trials the FDA cleared a new treatment aimed at helping those with knee pain. This new treatment is a high tech answer for all those who think that surgery, dietary supplements and prescription medications are the only option to eliminate knee pain.

"We have helped hundreds relieve their knee and back pain without surgery."

When will I feel results?

Most people feel better in a matter of weeks and can begin enjoying everyday activities.

Will my insurance cover this treatment?

YES, most major insurances and Medicare will pay for some if not all of our services.

Who is a good candidate for this treatment?

Do you wake up with knee pain?
Does your knee pain keep you from certain activities?
Have you been told you need a knee replacement?
Are you active and sometime suffer from sore knees?
Do you take medications for knee pain?

Do you have difficulty going up and down stairs due to knee pain?

Are you considering surgery to alleviate knee pain?
Have you tried everything to get rid of knee pain with no success?

If you answered yes to any of these questions, you are ready to experience the relief and healing found at NY Rehab.

How do I know that this is right for me?

In most cases, if you have knee pain, this is a great solution. Our doctors will give you an honest and fair evaluation of your particular knee pain. Space is Limited for the First 30 Callers! Call today to schedule your Knee Evaluation.

Apple's new No. 1 to unveil iPhone 5?

► With Steve Jobs out, Tim Cook will take center stage at latest event ► New phone must 'wow' consumers

Tim Cook finally gets his chance to stride out from under Steve Jobs' shadow, and he could not have picked a better time or device to mark his unofficial debut as Apple Inc.'s CEO.

The latest generation of the iPhone — still the smartphone industry's gold standard after four years — is expected to see the light of day tomorrow, just in time for the holidays.

Even in a dismal economy, consumers should again line up in droves for a souped-up device that also marks Cook's first major product launch since taking over from Jobs in August.

The so-called iPhone 5 is widely expected to have a bigger touch-screen and faster processor than the current iPhone 4, which helped the company stay a step ahead of rivals in an increasingly competitive smartphone market.

Its challenge will be to "wow" consumers with yet more game-changing innovations and top itself. The aging iPhone 4 is still an unqualified blockbuster: With more than 20 million sold in the third quarter that ended June 25 alone, it is likely to become the world's top-selling smartphone.

But the latest version of the gadget that helped define the smartphone category is coming at a time when the world economy is slowing and competition is at its peak. More than 550,000 Google Android-based devices are activated each day globally. REUTERS

The cause was an unusually long spell of cold weather at altitude. • METRO

New trend: Discount on college education

► Schools are taking a little bit off the top as potential students hesitate to enroll ► More applicants translate to more money for some colleges

What do most companies do when they are trying to move a product? They have a sale. Now colleges are jumping on the same bandwagon.

Introducing: tuition discounts! It comes at a time when students and families are more hesitant than ever to invest exorbitant amounts of money into higher education.

Schools are offering these discounts through a number of qualifications including early enrollment, academic achievements and even certain majors.

While the incentive is certainly attractive to

Seton Hall University recently announced its new tuition discount, offering students $21,000 off the sticker price for early applicants who meet certain academic requirements.

budget-conscious families, SmartMoney.com says it's also an attempt by colleges to boost their rankings. Discounts could attract more applicants, giving the college lower acceptance rates. This can make it look more desirable and even boost its rankings.

Those who enroll in Duquesne University's School of Education will receive a 50 percent discount on the $26,400 tuition. Grace College will offer a three-year degree program that saves students about 50 percent on the cost of college, according to official estimates.

Columbia college is offering a tuition guarantee that the cost ($16,532) will remain the same for all four (or five) years, instead of the average increase of 4 percent per year.

Hermes: Rich still buying

PARIS. French luxury goods maker Hermes sees no sign yet of affluent buyers tightening their purse strings in spite of a somber global economic outlook, the head of the brand said yesterday at Paris Fashion Week.

The luxury goods industry continues to grow at a solid pace thanks to tourist buyers in Europe and strong appetite in emerging markets, while more affordable products such as L'Oreal and Clarins cosmetics have felt a slowdown.

Our Aim is to Beat Most Offers!

We Strive to Beat All Legitimate Written Offers

Before bringing your items to us, take them to other dealers. Have them give you legitimate offers in writing. Then bring your jewelry and written offers to one of our locations. Although no one can guarantee with certainty they are paying the highest price for an article at any particular time, we will strive to beat most legitimate written offers.

Why We Can Usually Pay More Than Other Dealers

Most jewelers and dealers specialize in few items and focus on newer looking items to resell. Because they are unfamiliar with many other items including vintage jewelry, old watches, coins, flatware, etc. they tend to offer very low prices because these items are not readily saleable for them. Our company has many specialized buyers for the various classifications of items that we purchase, therefore we can usually pay more.

A Note Regarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927 S Quarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition. The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Customer Satisfaction

Most of our business comes from satisfied customers and referrals which includes their friends and families. Our showrooms are safe and private. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

FIGHT ON AGAINST THIS DEADLY FOE

► Progress in treatment, moves toward a cure ► But still nearly a quarter of a million American woman will die from breast cancer this year

October:

BREAST CANCER AWARENESS MONTH

Too many of us know someone who has been affected by breast cancer. Too many have suffered breast cancer directly. It is one of the biggest killers in the Western world, where the incidence of the disease is at its highest. Metro is proud to again promote breast cancer awareness and the events happening all month. We urge you to support this most worthy of causes.

© TONY METCALF, EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

As the United States marks Breast Cancer Awareness Month this October, it is reassuring to think that modern medicine is making major strides forward in the fight against the disease.

And, indeed, that is the case.

From the 1940s until the 1980s, the number of new cases of breast cancer rose by about 1 percent per year — most likely due to a big increase in the amount of mammography screening.

But as better screening and detection came on to the scene, the level of new cases fell away in the 1990s and continued to do so in the early years of this century.

Researchers believe that is because of reduced use of post-menopausal hormones in women, which were found to bring an increased risk of breast cancer.

Ethnic difference

Breast cancer in the U.S. by race and ethnicity:

► In the United States, since 1975 the incidence of new cases of breast cancer has increased at a faster rate among white women than among black women.

► At the same time, the incidence of death among white women has decreased — while in black women it has increased.

► White women still have the highest proportionate occurrence of breast cancer per head of population.

► American Indian or Alaskan Native women have the lowest incidence — only about 60 percent of that of white women.

► Women of Asian descent have an incidence rate of around 80 percent of that of white women; Hispanic women have an incidence of around 75 percent of that of white women.

And, as Metro reports constantly, America's medical community is at the forefront of the search for new treatments and, hopefully, a cure for the disease.

Yet there is a sobering figure to consider.

In 2011, despite all the advances, it is estimated that there will be more than 230,000 new cases of invasive breast cancer among American women — and more than 2,100 in American men.

An estimated 39,000 American women will die this year from the disease in addition to 450 men, according to U.S. Department of Health figures.

So, the fight goes on.

The month of October will see dozens of events across the country — including many right here in New York City — aimed at raising awareness of, and raising money for research into, breast cancer.

MELISSA ETHERIDGE MY INSPIRATIONAL STORY OF SURVIVAL

Singer, activist and breast cancer survivor Melissa Etheridge received a star on Hollywood's Walk of Fame this week, an event she hopes can be an inspiration to anyone facing adversity or dreaming of a better life.

Grammy winner Etheridge, 50, who is known for her fusion of folk-blues rock in hits like "Come to My Window," was greeted by hundreds of fans outside the Hard Rock Cafe in Hollywood as she unveiled her coveted star.

"Let my life be an inspiration to anyone — gay, straight, breast cancer, woman, mother, any human being who receives the inspiration from my story," said Etheridge at the unveiling that took place in conjunction with the launch of a "Pinktober" campaign supporting breast cancer research.

"You can have a dream that you can grow up in a small Midwestern town and believe, and desire, and create a life and end up with a star on the Walk of Fame on Hollywood Boulevard," she said.

The Kansas native has released 10 studio albums over her 25-year career; the multi-platinum 1993 CD, "Yes I Am," garnering chart success and international recognition.

Etheridge, who counts winning the Oscar for "I Need to Wake Up" from the environmental movie "An Inconvenient Truth" and singing with Bruce Springsteen among career highlights, still finds herself surprised with the global success of her songs.

Melissa Etheridge

Seven years ago, Melissa Etheridge was diagnosed with breast cancer.

50 years old; born in Kansas. Sings and plays guitar, piano, harmonica and mandolin.

Breakthrough with 1993 album, "Yes I Am."

Has been nominated for Grammy awards 15 times and won twice. Has also won an Academy Award.

"When I realized that my music was being listened to internationally, it meant so much to me," said Etheridge. "It started to become very obvious to me that music is an international language."

Alongside her music career, Etheridge became a voice for gay rights after publicly coming out as a lesbian in 1993. An active spokeswoman, Etheridge, who was diagnosed with breast cancer in 2004, also became an Artist Ambassador for the Pinktober breast cancer awareness campaign.

Her star on the Walk of Fame marked the official start of this year's Pinktober effort, which will see numerous special events, concerts and limited edition merchandise available at Hard Rock establishments around the world. REUTERS

WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW ABOUT BREAST CANCER

As National Breast Cancer Awareness Month highlights the second most common form of cancer in women (after skin cancer), medical professionals can't stress preventive measures strongly enough.

"It's proven that a healthy diet and exercise help prevent breast cancers," says Dr. Parisa Lotfi, a radiologist at Boston's Faulkner Hospital's Sagoff Centre. "Obesity is a risk factor."

"Learn the basics of healthy eating, including plant-based diets," urges oncologist Dr. Leonard Farber, founder of Manhattan's Farber Center for Radiation Oncology, which specializes in emerging technologies and integrative treatment.

Equally important is regular screening. Breast radiology usually involves a mammogram, which can detect small lesions that aren't noticeable by physical exams.

"Never miss a screening. Follow guidelines to catch tumors early," says Dr. Farber.

"Catching these means a good prognosis," says Dr. Lotfi. In the U.S., women with no family history of breast cancer aren't advised to get annual mammograms until age 40. Dr. Lotfi recommends younger women should have annual breast exams by a physician or gynecologist. Also important are monthly self-administered exams.

Quoted

"Never miss a screening, follow guidelines to catch tumors early. Catching these means a good prognosis."

DR. LEONARD FARBER

Women and men should be on the lookout for small, immovable lumps in both their breasts and armpits.

"Breast cancer in younger women without a family history of the disease is more rare, but when it does occur it's usually a more aggressive type of cancer," she says.

Treatment for tumors includes surgery, chemotherapy, radiation, hormonal therapy and biologically targeted therapy. There are alternative therapies, too. New developments include options such as Accubio targeted breast radiation.

"It's non-invasive. It targets the cancer to deliver a dose of radiation that we know works," Dr. Farber explains.

Breathe in, don't panic

One thing patients shouldn't do is panic.

"It's important to take a breath and say, is this the only option? If it doesn't sit right, ask questions," says Dr. Farber. "Hospitals are a business, bottom line. So, hunt around. Choose your treatment, choose your team. We try to empower the patient as much as possible."

A new areola: Nipple tattoos after cancer

► Breast reconstruction is not the end for many survivors ► They want to look like they used to ► A Manhattan-based tattoo artist is helping out

After Priscilla Filippelli, 49, was diagnosed with breast cancer, she had both her breasts removed and then reconstructed.

But one thing prevented her from closing the book on cancer: areola restoration. "It was like looking at a face without features," Filippelli, from New Jersey, said of her new breasts without nipples.

When women undergo breast reconstruction, areola reconstruction is part of the process.

In Filippelli's case, doctors first used a skin graft from her thigh to replace her areola, but her body rejected it. It was then that "I was not in the market for a tattoo at all. ... But it makes you feel 100 percent better. I believe my nipples look better than they did before."

This woman's breast was removed after breast cancer and then reconstructed. In the picture below, on the right, you can see her new nipple. If patients wish to have a truly three-dimensional nipple, they get injections of artefill, a permanent soft-tissue filler.

Getting 'inked'

Whitney uses specially designed cosmetic inks that are more subdued and natural than ordinary tattoo inks. She also can use a topical anesthetic if the area is sensitive, so patients feel no pain. "We talk about what they used to look like; but now, they can decide what they would like to look like," Whitney said. Most out-of-network insurance will cover the nipple tattoos, which can cost up to $3,000 without coverage.

her surgeon recommended getting a tattoo.

She said: "I had no desire to get it done until I saw pictures. It's as close to natural as possible."

She met with permanent cosmetic Melany Whitney, a Pratt-educated fine artist who paints permanent areolas onto cancer survivor's breasts.

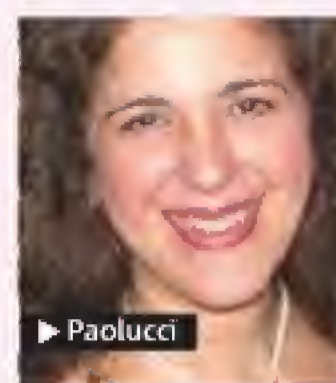

"Women are fighting for their lives to beat breast cancer," said Whitney, who has offices in Manhattan, New Jersey and Florida. "But they are always reminded of it, every single day, by this mound of flesh that doesn't look like it was supposed to."

The procedure, which consists of two two-hour tattoo sessions, creates the "illusion of protrusion," said Whitney. She uses shading and cosmetic inks to create the illusion of a three-dimensional nipple.

"As they look at what they used to have reformed, they are happy," Whitney said. "It's finally the end of their journey — and they actually see that."

Chemo kits to help ease the pain

From painful mouth sores to the discomfort of cotton sheets against her head while sleeping, Anne Marie Paolucci knows the aches and pains associated with chemotherapy.

Paolucci, who lives in Manhattan, was diagnosed and treated for breast cancer twice. While undergoing chemotherapy, she discovered it's the small things that make the grueling process easier.

She now packs products such as toothpaste for mouth sores, a satin sleeping cap, lemon drops, teas and ginger products in kits for Chemo Comfort, an organization she started in 2005.

Chemo Comfort is run by volunteers out of Paolucci's West Village office. The nonprofit has partnered with five organizations to provide the kits to cancer patients. They also offer a subsidized patient kit, for which patients are asked to make a $15 donation. If that price cannot be met, Chemo Comfort will send the kit for only the cost of the shipping and handling fees.

A total of 1,500 kits have been distributed so far and the total retail value of the products is $140. Paolucci said beyond the products in the kit, Chemo Comfort provides empowerment to cancer patients.

"It offers ways for people to help themselves. When you have cancer people are constantly doing things to you and for you. With this, you can do things to help yourself," she said.

She was taken aback by the positive feedback she's received from patients, who said Chemo Comfort helped them through their treatments.

"It's mind-boggling that my experience with breast cancer has helped so many people," she said.

● MARY ANN GEORGANTOPOULOS

What comes in a Chemo Comfort kit?

- Toothpaste, mouthwash, toothbrush and lozenges to help manage mouth sores and chemo burn/thrush
- Teas and crystallized ginger for nausea
- Hand sanitizer
- Sleep cap and satin pillowcase for hair loss

- Warm socks
- Book: "Living Well With Cancer"
- Blank book for journaling or keeping track of medical information and symptoms
- "Anne Marie's Helpful Hints" — a booklet with hints from Paolucci of ways to cope with cancer and chemo treatment

Patients get free fertility treatment

When a woman is first diagnosed with breast cancer, a million thoughts fill her mind: Do I have to get chemo? Should I get a mastectomy? How much will my insurance cover?

But one question that may enter her mind is whether she can ever have children after treatment.

That concern is something a Manhattan fertility clinic wants to change.

The Sher Institute for Reproductive Medicine in Mid-

"More and more oncologists are realizing: 'Wait a minute, I can do something for these women and their fertility.'" town is offering the ability for female cancer patients to freeze their eggs — for free. It's a procedure that usually costs around $10,000.

Of about 50 cancer patients the clinic has treated, 15 had breast cancer, said Dr. Drew Tortoriello, Sher Institute's medical director.

"If they get a diagnosis, they might not do chemo for two weeks, and I can get 20 eggs out in two weeks," Tortoriello said. "That's potentially a few children down the road."

Chemotherapy, or radiation, can take a toll on a body's reproductive system, possibly leaving women infertile. But if women freeze their eggs before the process starts, it's one way to preserve the possibility of having children some day.

The Sher Institutes are offering this service for free to any cancer patient about to start chemotherapy or radiation. ● ALISON BOWEN

HOW YOU CAN HELP SOMEONE WITH CANCER

We've likely all told someone going through a rough time, "I'm here if you need anything." But what are some concrete things you can do to show your support? We asked Anne Marie Paolucci, whose nonprofit Chemo Comfort is profiled on page 14, for some ideas. It turns out that there are plenty of little things you can do to make a big impact.

breast cancer awareness

► Just being there goes a long way. But is there more you can do?

► Treat them the same

"I was always happy when someone would call and have a normal conversation with me or complain about something going on in their lives — but you need to listen [in case] that someone's not in the mood that particular day. I remember a friend calling with a problem and then saying, 'I can't believe I'm telling you this!' It's like no, you're treating me as your friend, and not your cancer patient friend, and that's a nice thing to hear sometimes."

► Be honest, but sensitive

"I always appreciated someone saying to me, 'I don't know what to say to you,' as opposed to, saying things [like] 'Your hair'll grow back, you'll be OK.' The hair is a big deal because it's a symbol of so many things. You're losing yourself and you're becoming 'cancer patient.' And it's a symbol of what's going on inside you, it's like this lack of control and this battle between cancer and chemo."

► Help out with errands

"Stick within your forte. Like if you're an accountant: 'I'd be happy to come balance your checkbook.' A huge thing is medical bills: 'Can I spend an afternoon helping you go through that?' If it's somebody who's nearby, call when you're going to the grocery store, the drugstore or the dry cleaners: 'Can I drop something off or pick something up for you?' Accompany someone to a medical appointment, or give them a ride to or from."

► Bring some cheer

Round up some funny movies and head on over to their place. "Humor's great," Paolucci says. "It's healing. It takes you out of those [dark] places."

► If you want to cook, ask first

"Through chemo, there's things that just turn your stomach for no apparent reason," she says. "I think it's worth a conversation saying, 'I'd like to bring you a meal, what works best for you?' It's probably better to stay away from spicy foods or anything that's crusty or with edges because you have a lot of oral issues, depending on the chemo."

► Be wary of sniffles

"If you are at all unwell, no matter what you said you would do for the person, you'll do more for them if you say, 'I think I'm getting sick, be honest if you don't want me around.' Because if someone's counts are down, they don't want to be anywhere near you. You could put them in the hospital if they end up with an infection. It's really serious, so don't think, 'Oh I'll just sniffle my way around this, it'll be fine.' Really be honest."

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip ✉ @dorothyatmetro 📧 dorothy.robinson@metro.us

This TV host likes thongs — and also not grunting

After the first commercial break on each episode of "Jeopardy!", host Alex Trebek spends a little bit of time getting to know the contestants. But Thursday it was his turn to be interviewed, as students at Fordham University were treated to an appearance by the legendary game show host. The 71-year-old Trebek, on the mend from a serious burglary attack in July, offered up some of his pet peeves.

"People who cut in line. People who think the rules don't apply to them. Comedians whose first words when they are introduced and come onstage in front of an audience [are]: 'Hey, how's everybody doing?' Shut up and get into your routine!"

Trebek told the crowd at Fordham that he preferred thongs to boxers or briefs. He was kidding — we hope.

And he's got a whole list of grievances when it comes to the sports world. "Female tennis players who cannot hit a ball without grunting — when on earth did that start? I think back to Billie Jean King, Chris Everet, Sharapova — they never grunted that way."

Others on his list: "Basketball players who after every free throw turn around and have to bump hands with the other four members of their team — now what the hell is all that about? My biggest peeve is for those clowns at golf tournaments, when someone hits an approach shot from 150 yards away and they yell at the top of their lungs, 'Go in the hole! Shoot the SOB, please!'"

Yikes. Sounds like there's a lot you can do to piss off Trebek. But if you ever get the chance to meet him, and you're tempted to sing the "Jeopardy!" tune to him, don't worry: He won't get mad. "It's a sign of love," he told Metro after his talk. "It's a sign of familiarity. It means they like the program and that makes me feel good."

Kutcher no longer following wife on Twitter

Ashton Kutcher and Demi Moore have reportedly been working all summer to save their relationship, though it appears the efforts were in vain. "[Demi] and Ashton had been receiving counseling from Kabbalah over the summer to try to fix their marriage," a source tells Entertainment Tonight, adding that the couple have been living apart for some time. Moore is said to be "sad, hurt and embarrassed" by Kutcher's latest cheating scandals and rumors about an impending split. She's likely also troubled by the fact that Kutcher is no longer following her on Twitter.

Some get bigger slice of the Pie

Things could get awkward on the "American Reunion" set if the subject of paychecks ever comes up, as producers reportedly snagged a return appearance by Tara Reid for much less than other cast members. Reid signed on with the picture — a sequel to "American Pie" — for a reported $250,000, according to the Hollywood Reporter, while co-stars Jason Biggs and Seann William Scott each got $5 million and a share of grosses. Alyson Hannigan earned a reported $3 million. The rest of the cast, including Chris Klein and Shannon Elizabeth, reportedly made between $500,000 and $750,000 each.

Talking points

Clooney takes on Us Weekly

George Clooney is rushing to ex-girlfriend Elisabetta Canalis' defense after an article in Us Weekly claimed she'd sent angry text messages to Clooney and his current girlfriend, Stacy Keibler. "I never comment on my personal life unless it affects others, and this lie affects others," Clooney said in a statement to the magazine. "Since I would be the only actual witness, I ask you to correct your story immediately — but that would assume you cared at all about telling the truth."

Taking in Radiohead

Exes Ryan Reynolds and Scarlett Johansson continue to prove to the world how amicable their split was, this time stepping out together to take in a Radiohead concert in New York City, according to Us Weekly. "Ryan and Scarlett came in together right before the show started and just watched, rocked out and left together," says a source. "They just seemed like good friends."

Wedding planning rough on Cowell

Simon Cowell admits that with "The X-Factor" taking up so much of his time, his love life — and impending nuptials — have to take a back seat. "It has probably been the busiest year I've ever had. Making the choice to get married is something you just have to decide when the time is right," Cowell says, according to Hollyscoop. And his rep is quick to dash rumors that Cowell and fiancée Mezghan Hussainy are on the outs. "You might have to wait 20 years for Simon to plan a wedding, but they are as close as they have ever been," the rep insists.

More than a 'House Bunny'

► In a candid interview, 'What's Your Number?' star Anna Faris talks about the challenges of being a leading lady in Hollywood ► 'I normally get sent really bad pieces of s—,' she says

Though she's well-known for comedy, Anna Faris would argue that "What's Your Number?" is something of a departure for her. "I had never really done a romantic comedy before," says the actress, who first rose to fame in the "Scary Movie" franchise. "Usually I get offered these roles that are crazy and broad, that don't seem like very real characters. And this seemed like a very grounded character. And it was such a strong script. I normally get sent really bad pieces of s—."

Quoted

"I'm sort of yearning to play the sloppier characters." FARIS

The new film also marks the second time (after 2008's "The House Bunny") that Faris has served as executive producer on one of her projects — but she doesn't think you should read too much into that. "I came on as an executive producer, which really doesn't mean much. They pretend to ask your opinion," she says with a laugh. "I mean, they asked my opinion about a lot of things. Sometimes they listened."

One of the areas where they apparently didn't listen to Faris was on her character's look. "I wanted her to be a little chunky and a little sloppy — like unemployed, tennis shoes. But there was a lot of disagreement about that element," she says. "I understand that visually, it's fun to wear nice clothes — and I get that she has a rich mom so that's how we justified her Prada shoes — but I don't know. I'm sort of yearning to play the sloppier characters and to play characters that are a little more real, just more relatable."

The number question

Anna Faris' character reads an article in Marie Claire about how the more sexual partners a woman has had, the less likely she is to find love. And so the plot of "What's Your Number?" begins. Faris — who says her mother forbade her from reading magazines like that growing up — wonders how much good or harm those types of articles are doing: "Why do we still feel guilty about sexual experiences?"

As for the number question itself? "I feel like it's more important to a woman what a woman's number is — to themselves — than what a man really thinks about it," Faris suggests. "It's a question that young people ask themselves a little bit more. I think as you get older you realize that nothing good can come of this line of conversation. But, it's unfortunately a conversation that we're still having."

Box office

'Dolphin Tale' leaps to top of weekend box office

Family film "Dolphin Tale" jumped to the top of the movie box office over the weekend, unseating "The Lion King" and beating four newcomers, according to studio estimates released yesterday.

"Dolphin Tale," which had finished third when it debuted a week earlier, took in $14.2 million over three days at U.S. and Canadian theaters. The movie is based on the true story of a dolphin that gets snared by a crab trap and is rehabilitated with a prosthetic tail.

Learning when to submit

- Themes of prejudice and identity come to the forefront when a writer produces a play under a pseudonym
- TV stars Jonathan Groff and Rutina Wesley lead the cast in a work that promises to get under your skin

A fantasy that intoxicates any writer's waking hours comes to life onstage in MCC Theater's production of Jeff Talbott's "The Submission." After years of submitting plays to little success, white playwright Danny Larsen (Jonathan Groff) encounters a muse that inspires him to write an amazing, thought-provoking script that might earn him enough fame and fortune to change his life. Of course there's a catch: It's credited to the pseudonym of Shaleeha G'ntamobi.

Enter Emilie (Rutina Wesley), a black actress hired to pretend she wrote this gritty tale of a ghetto-dwelling alcoholic mother and her card-hustling son.

This preliminary conceit is more than repaid by a subsequent series of conversations and consequences that explore issues of race, sexuality and cultural ownership. Danny and Emilie engage in a tension-filled tango where equality and inequity are debated without filter, presumably for the sake of art. Polarized viewpoints are precariously distilled through powerful young actors who aren't afraid to expose character weaknesses — pride, greed, ego — to make them real.

The content is so absorbing that it could be successfully staged on folding chairs; however, designers chose to flip walls and slide set pieces around to constantly reformat generic spaces (Starbucks, an apartment, a hotel room) that don't necessarily contribute to the dialogue or supply insight to the four characters — including Danny's boyfriend (Eddie Kaye Thomas) and best friend (Will Rogers), who get sideswiped by the ongoing charade.

The play also skirts around details like time and place (there's no mention of current politics, for example), as if the question of equality transcends any one differential. Maybe that's a clue to the riddle of right and wrong put forth in "The Submission."

Pharrell Williams 'all excited'

◆ 'There's no social life, but that's OK,' says the songwriter/producer/entrepreneur — and now creative director of Karmaloop TV ◆ He hints that he may help bring J.T. out of his busy filming schedule to make more music

Pharrell Williams is aware of the consequences of his busy schedule.

"There's no social life," says the songwriter/producer/entrepreneur, "but that's OK."

Williams' latest title is the creative director of Karmaloop TV, which is currently an online destination at www.karmaloop.com but is vying to be a full-fledged cable channel. The site has begun its first big push with an initiative dubbed Reclaim Your TV, which hopes to draw in the first generation that never knew life without Internet.

"We're 'live and let live' type of people," says Williams of the Reclaim slogan. "We just want to bring people the content that we miss and the things that we'd want to see."

When do you think TV got to a point where it needed to be reclaimed? Well, it's not really the networks' fault, or the cable providers' fault. It's the fact that the Internet has just made everything so abundant. ... There's so many different choices out there, and I could see how it could be confusing at times, and it's hard to remain focused. But that's what we're intent on doing. We intend to do a couple of things right, not 20 million things.

You have so many different ventures you're involved in, including clothing and liquor. How do you define the spark that has to be there for you to invest your time and money? I'm always up for the challenge, and it's always got to make sense. ... Being a partner in a network is a big move; but at the same time, contributing to all things creative there is an honor. Let's talk about music. Are you still finding time to get into the studio?

Yeah, everything from on the pop side from like Jay Sean all the way to Jay-Z.

How about J.T.? I've heard rumors that you've even been working with Justin Timberlake again.

I heard those rumors too. Are they true?

I'm not one to talk, but we're all excited.

5 Smart tips for modernizing your job search

Advice

SCAHWBEL

PERSONALBRANDINGBLOG.COM

By job searching the traditional way, it will be hard to differentiate yourself from the other people pursuing the same opportunities. If you want to be successful, try using the following five tools that will help you protect your personal brand, network more efficiently and deliver a modern résumé that hiring managers will notice.

bump: This iPhone application — which has been installed 50 million times — allows two phones to connect with each other by being “bumped” together. Instead of passing around business cards, which you might forget anyway, you can exchange professional contact information electronically.

sonar.me: Use this mobile application to uncover hidden connections during networking events and conferences. Sonar uses public social networking information to help you learn about the people around you so you can establish relationships faster.

resume.linkedinlabs.com: Go to this site to turn your LinkedIn profile into a resume that can be used during job interviews. There are multiple templates to choose from; you can customize your content and you can share it.

visualize.me: This site will pull in information from your LinkedIn profile and generate an infographic for you. This tool will give you something that you can easily share online and impress hiring managers.

knowem.com: You need to claim your brand name on social networks before someone else does. Use this site to search over 550 popular social networks, more than 150 domain names and even a trademark database to instantly secure your brand on the Web.

- ◉ Why you might want to make

Résumés are tricky documents. While you need to make your skills and experience sound impressive, there's a fine line between fancy wordplay and misrepresentation. And it's a line plenty of us cross, according to a new study by staffing service OfficeTeam: Of more than 1,000 managers surveyed, 36 percent report that job applicants "sometimes" include inaccurate information on their résumés.

While many candidates attempt to stretch the duration of a past job or misrepresent their levels of education, some inaccuracies aren't intentionally deceitful, says OfficeTeam's Wall Street market manager Daryl Pigat. "They'll think, 'I've worked in Photoshop a million years ago, so I can put that on.' But in fact,

"It's easy to sit in your room, type up a document and send it out with this mistruth on there. But in person, it's a lot harder to defend."

Managers were asked: "In your opinion, how often do job applicants include dishonest or exaggerated information on their résumés?"

- Very often: 7 percent
- Somewhat often: 36 percent
- Not very often: 48 percent

Managers who see a lot of résumés, like Pigat, can easily spot a suspicious entry — so it's likely you'll never have the chance to explain yourself in person. ## Résumé red flags

Whether you're being dishonest or just sloppy, these common missteps will make your résumé stand out in all the wrong ways:

- 1 Missing dates
If you leave off the months of employment at your previous jobs, hiring managers will wonder what you're trying to hide. After all, 2009-2010 covers a wide range.

- 2 Not stating degrees
This, says Pigat, is a classic way to not lie about having a degree, but still include the name of the school and infer a diploma. It will immediately raise suspicions that you did not graduate.

- 3 Murky phrases such as "familiar with," "involved in," "had exposure to"
If this is the best way to describe a skill or experience, it's not significant enough to include on your résumé.

Women plan to leave field of bioscience

Bioscience organizations are in danger of losing some of their top-performing female employees, which could be particularly harmful to companies.

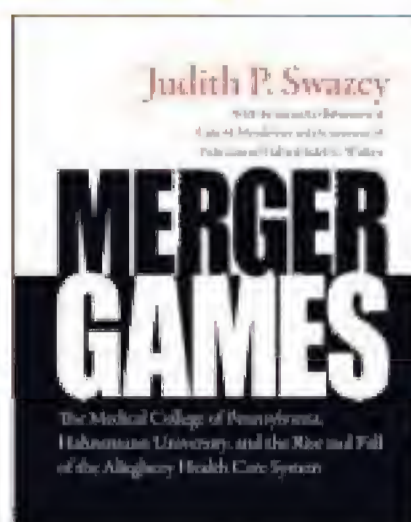

Catalyst — a nonprofit that studies women's opportunities in business — surveyed experts in health care, pharmaceuticals and academic medicine. Underrepresentation of senior female employees is especially harmful for companies looking to evolve: According to the study, women are earning more advanced degrees in some sciences than men, and they are also responsible for the majority of family health care decisions. METRO/MW

In 1994, Hahnemann University Medical College and the Medical College of Pennsylvania merged with Allegheny Health Care System in order to save their fledgling endowments.

According to the new book by Judith P. Swazey, Allegheny's CEO Sherif Abdelhak followed the acquisition by addressing the Hahnemann faculty, pointing his finger at them threateningly and saying, "Don't cross me." If business mergers can be compared to marriages, this one was on the rocks right from "I do."

When business met academia

► We'll give you a hint: It wasn't a love story ► The drama behind the merger of Philadelphia institutions

Lessons learned

No mergers are smooth from the start. "People go into mergers thinking that when the paperwork is done, the thing is a done deal," says Swazey. "But the research on mergers, including my own, shows that if it's going to be successful, it's going to take five to seven years. Everybody involved needs to be prepared for that."

cultures," says Swazey. "The faculty of the schools felt they should have a major governance role, but the business culture of Allegheny wouldn't allow that."

By 2000, both HUMC and MCP were no more. Allegheny was bankrupt and Abdelhak faced 1,500 charges of misappropriating funds. Plus, adding to the Rubik's Cube of mergers, Drexel University — along with Tenet Health Systems — had taken over the whole shebang.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. Your views and opinions will have a greater impact on those whom you counsel than you may realistically expect.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Although you may have thought those financial seeds you recently planted had gone to the winds, you might be pleasantly surprised by signs of sprouting.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. New challenges can be conquered if you draw upon what you've learned from similar experiences in the past. Don't hesitate to put this new knowledge to work.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. If you have something good to contribute, there is no reason why you shouldn't make your presence felt. However, do so in ways that won't make others view you as a right boor.

♓ Pisces Feb. 20-March 20. Because hopeful, new conditions are stirring on the horizon, it is important for you to stay in close touch with valuable contacts. You never know who might throw something your way.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. If you take it upon yourself to utilize all the assets at your disposal, you can get past any problems that might arise. It's going to be up to you to capitalize on your advantages.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. You have a gift of knowing instinctively how to put everyone at ease. Even though you won't play favorites, each person will go away feeling he or she received special attention.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Instinctively you'll know how to improve your material circumstances without expecting any miracles. You'll understand that all it takes is dedication.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. At this juncture, it's safer to put more stock in your own judgment than in the views of others. Your ability to evaluate developments and draw conclusions is remarkably accurate.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Financial prospects look exceptionally good for you; not because of luck, but because of your own ability to derive gains from multiple sources.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. The answer to whether or not someone to whom you're attracted is just as interested in you may finally come. You'll quickly find the answer by simply spending time in each other's company. BERNICE BEDE OSOL

► Miguel Cabrera takes a look at Yankees pitcher Freddy Garcia after his first-inning, two-run home run.

MAX EFFORT

► Scherzer dominates Yankees lineup early ► Tigers hang on in ninth, Cano leaves two men on base ► Aces take mound in crucial Game Three Freddy Garcia made one major mistake. He hung an outside slider to Miguel Cabrera that was sent over the right field wall for a two-run home run.

On many other days, the Yankees' offense would have overcome it, but not this time.

After doing nothing against Detroit starter Max Scherzer, the Yankees nearly rallied off Jose Valverde but could not complete the comeback and will head to Detroit following yesterday's 5-3 loss at Yankee Stadium. The loss evened the ALDS at one game apiece.

The Yankees had the tying run up twice against Valverde, but Derek Jeter struck out swinging. Two batters later the winning run was on, but Robinson Cano grounded out weakly to second base.

"You think something is going to happen," Jeter said. "Valverde is hard enough to score against. We just didn't get it done."

The series shifts to Detroit tonight for a rematch between CC Sabathia and Justin Verlander.

"A lot of people talk about Game Three being the most important game of a series, all the time," Yankees manager Joe Girardi said. "It's real important."

Pettitte returns to stadium

In February, Andy Pettitte walked into Yankee Stadium for a press conference to announce he was retiring.

Nearly nine months later, Pettitte returned for the first time as an ex-Yankee and felt the decision was right.

"I don't know if that will ever go away, because when I'm away, when I've been in Houston and not thinking about playing or thinking about the game or whatever, I'm so content," Pettitte said. "Retirement has been everything I thought it was going to be. It's been easy, which for me kind of solidifies my decision."

He returned to a standing ovation to throw out the ceremonial first pitch.

"Obviously I jog out to the mound and you kind of have flashbacks," Pettitte said.

Look at your toenails

Does something look "off"?

Take a look at your toes. Does part of your big toenail look a little yellow or brownish in color? It could be the beginnings of toenail fungus. Not only is toenail fungus embarrassing, but it can spread - to your other toes, from foot to hand, or even to your family members.

Right now, doctors in New York and Long Island are conducting a research study of an investigational medication for nail fungus that may help. This medication is clear and applied directly to the nail. If you join, you will receive the nail medication and all study-related care at no cost. You will also be paid for your time.

1 Deja vu: Manning re-created his magic in the Cardinals' home stadium by leading a late comeback. The suddenly hot Manning found Hakeem Nicks in the back of the end zone for a 29-yard touchdown with 2:39 remaining in the comeback win. Manning went 27-of-41 for 321 yards, two touchdowns and no interceptions.

2 O-si you: Osi Umenyiora's season debut was a success, as he strip-sacked quarterback Kevin Kolb midway through the first quarter. Umenyiora, who missed most of training camp and all of the season to date with a bum knee, easily beat the left tackle and chased Kolb down to force the fumble.

3 Tuck-ered out: Justin Tuck (neck/groin) made the trip but never suited up. The Giants' pass rush didn't suffer though, as the front seven tallied four sacks. Tuck's replacement, Dave Tollefson, registered two sacks, both in the first half, while Umenyiora added the other two. METRO/TW

Where Eli Manning dodged Patriots and won a Super Bowl MVP, the Giants lucked into their third win of the season.

The Giants trailed by 10 points with less than four minutes to play when Manning led his team to two touchdowns in 58 seconds. But it wasn't without controversy.

Manning threw a touchdown pass to Jake Ballard in the back of the end zone to make it 27-24 Arizona with 3:37 remaining. From there, it got crazy.

When the Giants got the ball back, Manning threw a pass to Victor Cruz for a large gain — before Cruz stood up without being touched and left the ball behind. While Arizona recovered, officials ruled Cruz had "given himself up." The ball stayed with the Giants, and by rule the call couldn't be challenged.

"He just told me I couldn't challenge," Cardinals head coach Ken Whisenhunt said. "I like to think it shouldn't have come to that play. That's the way I have to look at it."

Manning threw a 29-yard touchdown to Hakeem Nicks on the next play to take the lead.

RAVENS 34, JETS 17

Jets slide continues at Ravens

The bounce back never happened.

After a bad road loss to the Raiders last weekend, the Jets never got the strong start they needed to get soaring. Instead, they endured a disastrous first quarter where they got physically outplayed and outthusted.

Last night's 34-17 loss to the Ravens was a disappointing game; and with a trip next weekend to Foxboro, Mass., to take on the Patriots, a season of promise could be spiraling to mediocrity.

On the Jets' very first play, Ed Reed lined up on on quarterback Mark Sanchez's blind-side. Reed got through the line, forcing a fumble that Jameel McClain took six yards for a Ravens 7-0 lead. It was a microcosm of the Jets night.

And it was one of three defensive touchdowns for the Ravens.
